

True Northerner.

PAW PAW, MICHIGAN, JUNE 30, 1876.

Republican Nominations.

FOR PRESIDENT,
RUTHERFORD B. HAYES, of Ohio.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
WILLIAM A. WHEELER, of N. Y.

Republican State Convention.

A republican state convention to nominate candidates for state officers, and electors for president and vice president of the United States, and for the transaction of other business, will be held at the opera house in the city of Lansing, at 12 o'clock noon, on Thursday, August 3, 1876.

In accordance with a resolution adopted at Grand Rapids, May 10, 1876, every county will be entitled to one delegate for each 500 of the total vote cast for governor in 1874, and one additional delegate for each fraction of 300 votes; but every organized county will be entitled to at least one delegate.

Under the resolution of 1858, no delegate will be entitled to a seat who does not reside in the county he represents.

S. D. BINGHAM, Chairman.

Republican Congressional Convention.

The Republicans of the Fourth Congressional District of Michigan are requested to meet at Peck's Hall, in the city of Niles, at 11 o'clock a. m., on Tuesday, the 8th day of August, 1876, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Representative in the 45th Congress. It is recommended that the basis of representation adopted by the last State Convention be followed in the apportionment of delegates to this Convention, upon which basis the county of Berrien will have 12 delegates; Kalamazoo, 12; Van Buren, 10; St. Joseph, 10; Cass, 8. Total, 52.

WM. P. BENNETT,
E. W. CHURCHILL,
F. B. BERRY,
J. P. TRUESHER,
T. E. CLAPP.

Fourth Congressional Dist. Committee.
Dated June 19th, 1876.

The new Secretary of the Treasury who succeeds Mr. Bristow is Lot M. Morrill, of the State of Maine.

The Connecticut House of Representatives on last week Tuesday passed, by a vote of 106 yeas to 40 nays, a bill extending the ballot to women in certain cases.

On Sunday last, the 25th inst., the Swiss residents of Chicago, celebrated the four hundredth anniversary of the Battle of Murten, which was fought on the 25th day of June in the year one thousand four hundred and seventy-six, and won for Switzerland her national independence.

It is fortunate that Hayes has secured his nomination to the Presidency without any corrupt bargaining for support and without promises of political preferment to this or that candidate or his friends. The result will be, that if elected President he will be free to construct his cabinet in the interest of the country and so as to secure a successful administration.

The Indianapolis Journal says that the record of Hon. William A. Wheeler on the so-called "salary grab" is entirely unique. He voted against the measure at every stage and on its final passage. After it passed he drew his back pay, converted it into United States bonds and turned the bonds into the Treasury with the request that they be canceled, saying that he would "stop the interest on that much of the public debt at least."

It is reported that Mr. Hayes, in his letter of acceptance will bring out the hard-money and civil service reform planks of the platform much more emphatically than was done by the convention itself. If this be true, if the candidate of the party dares to take the stand of maintaining the party's platform as really meaning honest, earnest, thorough reform in the civil service and honest money for the people, the country will rest assured that such a man will gather about him a Cabinet made up of just such men as Bristow, able, upright, fearless.

Governor Bagley, attended the Cass County Pioneer Picnic, which was held at Cassopolis, on Wednesday, June 21st. In the course of his common sense and eloquent speech, he made the best hit at the financial vagaries of the present day that we have seen. It is as follows:

"In these times of depression and financial distress, when statesmen, or men who think they are statesmen, financiers, and political economists, are groping in the dark for some measure of relief, proposing all sorts of impossible schemes, legislating this way and that, calling a dollar two dollars if you are a debt, and fifty cents if somebody owes you—imagining that an act of Congress may prove a magician's wand by which hard times may be waved away and good times beckoned in; sometimes think that the only path that will lead us back to prosperity is the highway of labor, productive industry, old fashioned hard work, that will enable us to produce more than we consume, earn more than we spend, and export more than we import."

That is the idea exactly. No resolution of any political convention, no act of any legislature or of congress, can change the basis of that which the world has established and recognized as the standard and measure of values from the days that Joseph's brothers sold him into bondage to the present time.

The Cincinnati Gazette refers thus to the nomination of Hayes and Wheeler: "Our flag is there. It is nailed to the masthead. It will stand. It will wave in November in celebration of a victory equal to any that has heretofore been achieved in this country. The Republican party, by the action of yesterday's convention, has been saved from disaster. The hand that was lifted to assassinate the good old party was stayed and we are safe. Bristow was not the choice, but his honored name, his grand achievements, and the patriotism of his friends saved the party and saved the country. With Hayes as President and Bristow at the head of the treasury department, with a firm and honest President, and a fearless, honest and aggressive Secretary, thieves will find no abiding place outside of the penitentiary. The traders in political patronage will be banished, honest men will come to the front, and in this centennial year, honesty, integrity, morality and reform will be inscribed upon the national banner."

Railroad rings, whisky rings, treasury rings, and disreputable rings of every kind have been voted down, and we have a ticket and a platform around which all honest men may rally."

Upon hearing of the nomination of Hayes, Bristow sent him the following dispatch:

I offer you my sincerest congratulations upon your nomination. It will be alike my highest pleasure, as well as my first political duty, to do the utmost in my power to promote your election. The earliest moments of my returning and confirmed health, will be devoted to securing you as large a vote in Maine as she would have given for myself.

J. G. BLAIR.

The Bangor Reflector of the 24th inst., in giving a summary of the newspaper sentiment on the congressional question, says: "The True Northerner contents itself with an occasional leonine growl at every candidate that shows his head without thus far showing any preference."

The Reflector is mistaken as to the "leonine growl." We have borne our testimony as to the character and worth of Mr. A. B. Dyckman, and the Reflector's pet, Hon. C. W. Clibbe. We have hoped to see a Van Buren county man put forward on whom the people of this county and this district could unite and feel that they had found the "right man for the right place," but have not seen proper to take any course that would seem dictatorial. Neither have we wished to attempt to forestall public opinion by attempting to force it into channels other than it would naturally drift on a careful survey of the field and a full canvass of the merits of the several candidates and their peculiar fitness for the position. It is the people who are to be served, and we have preferred to wait until public sentiment had settled down on some one of the several candidates as their choice, and then follow the lead of that sentiment. From present indications we judge that the people are fast coming to their conclusion in this matter. We are also aware that the great voting public look at candidates from a standpoint of their own and not from that of the self-interested and his special champions.

In these times of distrust, the people want men of honesty, integrity and great efficiency. They want men who will ever be found on the right side of every great question that is now before the country, and who have the courage, ability and power to make themselves felt in their settlement. They care less for persons and locations than they do for the ability to act and do. They want the best talent that can be found, and will have it, unless thwarted in their wishes by wire-pullers and the self-interested.

We claim to know something of popular sentiment on the congressional question, and, if we mistake not, that sentiment has already drifted away from some of the names that have been brought forward. We know not what the ultimate result may be, but having no "pet candidate" of our own, we are prepared to adopt the "coming man," whoever he may be, and give him a hearty support.

We find this paragraph in the editorial columns of the Cincinnati Times:

"The Michigan delegation threw its solid vote for Hayes just at the right time, and deserves, with its chairman, Hon. William A. Howard—a Hayes man from the start—the firm acknowledgments of the supporters of Ohio's favorite for the important service so rendered."

And in the Chicago Tribune's detailed report of the struggle is this statement:

"The first break in favor of Hayes was made by Michigan on the fifth ballot. Up to that time Blaine had been getting 8 to 6, Bristow 9 to 11, and Hayes 4. Wm. A. Howard, who was the leader of the delegation, concluded that the time had come for the Hayes movement to begin. The whole delegation could not be concentrated on either Blaine or Bristow, but all agreed to follow their venerable and veteran leader for Hayes, who cast the 22 votes of his State solid for the Buckeye. The Ohio men were set wild, and there was great commotion and extreme nervous excitement from that moment until the struggle was over. To Howard belongs the honor for leading the coalition of forces."

On Wednesday, of last week, the Chicago Times contained an editorial article remonstrating against the nomination of Samuel J. Tilden, by the St. Louis convention. The Times said that such action would be a dangerous blunder for the democratic party inasmuch as it would be a practical endorsement of disloyalty. It proceeds to arraign Mr. Tilden as follows:

The fact that Mr. S. J. Tilden was chairman of the platform committee of the Chicago convention in 1864, which put forth the famous "peace platform," pronouncing the war a failure, and demanding an immediate cessation of hostilities, seems to have been strangely forgotten by the Northern politicians who propose to present him as a Presidential candidate at St. Louis. It is best that that fact should be recalled before the entrance upon a programme so stupid; for it would certainly not lack plenty of advertising after the taking of the proposed step.

We copy from the record of the Democratic National Convention of 1864 as follows:

"Mr. Tilden, of New York, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That a committee of one delegate from each State, to be selected by the delegates thereof, be appointed to report resolutions, and that all resolutions in relation to platform for the Democratic party be referred to said committee, without debate."

Maine—John W. Dana.
New Hampshire—Edwin Pease.
Connecticut—Charles E. Ingraham.
Rhode Island—Charles S. Bradley.
Massachusetts—George Lunt.
Vermont—T. B. Redburn.
New York—SAMUEL J. TILDEN.
New Jersey—Abraham Browning.
Pennsylvania—Geo. W. Cass.
Delaware—Charles Brown.
Kentucky—James Guthrie.
Ohio—Clement L. Vallandigham.
Indiana—James M. Hanna.
Illinois—S. S. Marshall.
Michigan—Augustus C. Baldwin.
Wisconsin—George B. Smith.
Minnesota—E. O. Hamlin.
Iowa—L. I. Bates.
California—John B. Weller.
Oregon—Benjamin Stark.
Kansas—Wm. C. McDowell.

The platform reported by the committee consisted of six resolutions. The first one was a declaration of "unwavering fidelity to the Union under the Constitution." The second one was in the following words, namely:

"Resolved, That this convention does explicitly declare, as the sense of the American people, that after four years of failure to restore the Union by the experiment of war—during which, under the pretense of a military necessity or war power higher than the Constitution, the Constitution itself has been disregarded in every part, and public liberty and private right alike trodden down, and the material prosperity of the country essentially impaired, justice, humanity, liberty and the public welfare demand that IMMEDIATE EFFORTS be made for a cessation of hostilities, with a view to an ultimate convention of the States, or other peaceable means, to the end that at the earliest practicable moment peace may be restored on the basis of the Federal Constitution."

Every one of the six resolutions was in relation to the war, but none had any great political significance, or gave any positive indication of a political party, excepting the second one—the famous "peace resolution," reproduced above.

The fact that Mr. Tilden was the foremost member of the committee which brought forth the burial platform of the Democratic party would not seem to encourage any reasonable expectations of his election to the Presidency against such a man as Governor Hayes.

If Mr. Tilden is the St. Louis nominee he will undoubtedly run as Horatio Seymour did in 1868, handicapped with a Copperhead record of the most damaging order, and the Times has thrown a strong light on but one feature of Men and Women.

Mrs. Shepherd Wells performed the ceremony at the recent laying of the corner stone of the new building for indigent women in St. Louis.

Robert Dale Owen was married at Lake George, last Friday, to Lottie Walton, daughter of the late Martin Kellogg, of Hartford, Conn.

The ladies of Syracuse have formed a Come Home Husbands' Club; and although the club has been in operation but a week, the broom makers of the city have held two meetings for the purpose of returning thanks to the members for their generous patronage.

An exchange wants ladies to take off their hats in church, but as long as half the ladies go to church for the purpose of displaying their hats, it is hardly possible that the suggestion will be adopted—unless a glass case is placed alongside of the pulpit for their accommodation, and the name of the owner is prominently affixed to each hat.—(Norristown Herald.)

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore returned home two weeks ago from a tour in California in excellent health and spirits. After only three days of rest, she went to Philadelphia to take part in the great convention of the temperance women of America. The Woman's Journal says:—"There is not one man in a thousand, even of those who are accustomed to public life, who could do the work and endure the fatigue which this lady has undergone during the past seven years. In view of such an example, the question of woman's comparative physical and mental ability for severe and protracted labor is not only proved, but demonstrated."

The literary department of the Chicago Tribune is conducted by Mrs. Hubbard, the wife of an accomplished musician. He was formerly professor of music in Yale college, and many of his compositions are popular. Mrs. Hubbard is a thorough and indefatigable student, and puts her whole life into her literary work. She is strongly addicted to scientific studies, and is a member of two or three scientific associations. Indeed, she has made many original observations. She is a conscientious critic and her reviews are specially characterized by fairness and body. She is not satisfied with passing judgment on a book, if it has real merit, but often gives a faithful and interesting abstract of its contents. She is a good writer, always clear, and vivacious, and pithy, though seldom sparkling, and displays a mind of rare conscientiousness and culture. And her department is one of the best features of the paper with which she has been so long connected.—(New York Graphic.)

Mrs. Sarah J. Spencer of Washington was the first woman who was ever granted the privilege of addressing a national political convention, and that convention was the Republican convention recently held at Cincinnati. The New York Tribune says she bore herself well, and her voice, clear and distinct, reached many more of her audience than many of the speakers of the day. Her thrusts at the masculine enemy were received with good-humored applause, and when she reminded Frederick Douglass that he owed more to one woman—Harriet Beecher Stowe—than to all the men alive, and warned the sardonic Logan that the day might come when 10,000,000 women with ballots in their hands might forget him in return for his forgetfulness of them, the convention seemed to think them fair hits, and applauded vigorously. The favorable impression which Mrs. Spencer personally made was not in the least diminished when she showed the rare virtue in a convention speaker of curtailing her own time. Perhaps it was sympathy, perhaps it was gratitude, but the convention rewarded her at the close with a good generous round of applause, that was twice repeated.

Campaign Jottings.

Hurrah for Hayes and Wheeler.

Hayes & Wheeler clubs are being organized all over the country.

The Hon. Ben Hill is said to have exclaimed with brometone emphasis, when he heard of the Cincinnati nomination: "They've got us again!"

Ex-Secretary Bristow addressed a Republican ratification meeting in Cincinnati last Saturday evening, and expressed unlimited confidence in the patriotism and trustworthiness of Hayes and Wheeler.

A few years ago some of the Union soldiers wrote to Gen. Phil Sheridan, asking him to be a candidate for President, and his answer was that if he could name the man for 1876, it would be Rutherford B. Hayes, of Ohio.

Boston, Me., June 22.—The republican state convention met at noon to-day. The attendance was large and enthusiastic. The opening address was delivered by the Hon. W. Knut. He said Maine would give Hayes and Wheeler an overwhelming majority notwithstanding the state's disaffection.

Chicago, June 21.—The Times this morning makes a savage assault on Tilden on the ground that he was chairman of the committee on resolutions in the Chicago convention of 1864, which put forth the famous peace platform, that declared the war a failure. It pronounces this to be the burial platform of the democratic party, and says that the man Tilden is responsible for such a platform cannot bear Hayes.

The old reliable Albany Journal closes an enthusiastic article on the presidential nomination with: "It is not in the nature of things, not in the nature of the American character, that such a ticket should fail. It stands for all that the clarified sentiment of the times demands, and it is in the sentiment of the splendid and unassailable platform which preceded it. Both leaders and platform are alike worthy of the republican party and of the country, and the former with their feet firmly set upon the latter, will be borne upon the shoulders of the people to an overwhelming Centennial victory."

The Detroit Free Press mourns because Hayes and Wheeler are impregnable against their attacks. There is no more work for democratic slanders.—Hillsdale Standard.

The Flint Globe says there are signs of weakness on the part of those who want Wm. A. Howard for governor. You labor under a mistake, gentle neighbor. We do not weaken with a cent. And here we wish to place on record the prediction that the republican nominee for governor will either be Wm. A. Howard or the "great Unknown." It will not be Croswell.—Bay City Tribune.

The nomination of Hayes is received with unanimous satisfaction by the republicans of Hillsdale; all former preferences were dispelled as soon as the nomination of Hayes was announced. From expressions of satisfaction given by republicans, we feel assured in stating there will be no diversion among the republicans of the banner county on the presidential ticket for 1876.—Hillsdale Standard.

Peaceful and calm is to be the canvass in East Saginaw, for the Courier says: We are not among those who believe the only course in conducting a newspaper through a political canvass is the unbridled indulgence of malignant abuse of candidates, and those who expect us to depart from this course which has been mapped out will be disappointed. If logical argument does not win, in our opinion nothing will, and we propose to treat our political opponents with the courtesy and consideration we have a right to expect in return.

TO THE PEOPLE OF PAW PAW, AND TOWNS ADJOINING.

In commencing our New Mode of Business, we wish to make known the principle upon which our business will be conducted, and wish to be distinctly understood,

1st. That we shall sell for Cash and Ready Pay.

2d. That our Prices shall be One and the same to every body.

3d. That we shall sell our Goods at a small advance from Cost, in all cases.

4th. That in no case shall there be any deception used to sell our goods; and that all Goods that do not prove to be what they are sold for, may be returned, and the money refunded.

5th. That it is our determination, in all cases, never to be undersold.

Smith's Great Boot & Shoe EMPORIUM.

The cry has gone forth on the wings of the whirlwind, that we are shoeing up the whole county on a Contract, twenty five per cent cheaper than you can steal them.

E. Smith & Co., Have always been famous for attracting crowded houses. The great mass of the people are found purchasing at their establishment. You can always find your friends and neighbors there, and if a neighbor gets lost, ten chances to one you will find him at Smith's trying on boots—in fact every lady of any account goes to Smith's for Boots, Shoes and Gaiters.

Your money we must have, and we shurely will take it from you if you enter our doors. You can't keep it if you enter our emporium. The temptation we hold out is too great; the Money will come.

No matter what others sell goods for, it is no criterion for us to go by. We are nearly one hundred per cent below every thing else in the market, and are rowing up the whole Boot and Shoe fraternity and expect soon to land on the shores of Cal-cu-tus Bay.

Hurrah Boys, Now's Your Harvest time for buying Boots, Shoes and Gaiters.

Nelly Bly shuts her eye When she goes to sleep; And in the morning when she wakes Dat eye begins to weep. She thinks our Shoes at berry low, And all our Gaiters too; But den her purse is lower still. O, what shall Nelly do.

Hie Nelly, ho Nelly, Listen, lub, to me. Go right straight down to Smith's store Where all de "big bugs" be; Day keeps do berry bestest shoes And sells dem orful cheap; And for a berry little cash Day gibs de biggest heep.

Hie Nelly, ho Nelly, Listen, lub, to me. De child dat goes up street to trade, How green dat child must be. Such lots of shoes as Smith keeps In dat great high, big store, You'd better bive you nebbes seen On ole Virginia shore.

Hie Nelly, ho Nelly, Listen, lub, to me. Stuck atacks and piles of boots and shoes You nebbes, nebbes see. So keep your eye pead, Nelly, dear. For dat do store in town Where obbey bobby buys der shoes, And whar dey do it brown.

Respect Boot and Shoe store in the United States.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping-Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Among the great discoveries of modern science, few are of more real value to mankind than this effective remedy for all diseases of the Throat and Lungs. A vast trial of its virtues, throughout this and other countries, has shown that it does surely and effectually control them. The testimony of our best citizens, of all classes, establishes the fact, that CHERRY PECTORAL will and does relieve and cure the afflicting disorders of the Throat and Lungs beyond any other medicine. The most dangerous affections of the Pulmonary Organs yield to its power; and cases of Consumption, cured by this preparation, are publicly known, so remarkable as hardly to be believed, were they not proven beyond dispute. As a remedy it is adequate, on which the public may rely for full protection. By curing Coughs, the forerunners of more serious diseases, it saves unnumbered lives, and an amount of suffering not to be computed. It challenges trial, and convinces the most sceptical. Every family should keep it on hand as a protection against the early and unperceived attacks of Pulmonary Affections, which are easily met at first, but which become incurable, and too often fatal, if neglected. Tender lungs need this defence; and it is unwise to be without it. As a safeguard to children, amid the distressing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of childhood, CHERRY PECTORAL is invaluable; for, by its timely use, multitudes are rescued from premature graves, and saved to the love and affection centred on them. It acts speedily and surely against ordinary colds, securing sound and health-restoring sleep. No one will suffer from the distressing influenza and painful Bronchitis, when they know how easily they can be cured.

Originally the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, no cost or toll is spared in making every bottle in the utmost possible perfection. It may be confidently relied upon as possessing all the virtues it has ever exhibited, and capable of producing cures as memorable as the greatest it has ever effected.
